
The client loads every tile the screen touches, at the zoom level that matches the map scale.
A layer groups features of one kind. Each feature has a geometry (point, line or polygon) and attributes (key/value pairs). Every tile stores its own layers and is encoded on its own.